

John C. Mannone is the recipient of the 2017 Jean Ritchie Fellowship in Appalachian literature and has won the 2015 and 2017 Joy Margrave award for creative nonfiction as well as the 2015 Tennessee Mountain Writers poetry award and the 2018 children's literature award. He's been awarded two Weymouth writing residencies. He also won the 2017 Horror Writers Association Scholarship. He was the 2018 Celebrity Judge for the National Federation of State Poetry Societies.

He has over 850 works in venues such ranging from the North Dakota Quarterly to the Annals of Internal Medicine. He's the author of three literary poetry collections: Apocalypse (Alban Lake Publishing, 2015); Disabled Monsters (The Linnet's Wings Press, 2015); and Flux Lines (forthcoming 2020). He's the poetry editor for Silver Blade, Liquid Imagination, Abyss & Apex, and American Diversity Report. And he is a Trustee/Director for Silver Pen, a 501(c)(3) organization designed to help writers, editors, and publishers achieve excellence.

John lives in east Tennessee between Knoxville and Chattanooga. He is an active member of both the Chattanooga Writers' Guild (President 2016-2019). Outside literary circles, he has been a professor of physics and a nuclear consultant. He is active in astronomy outreach and research and has served as a NASA/JPL Solar System Ambassador for the Great State of Tennessee (2008-2014). He writes spiritual poetry and has been sharing it through his Poetic Word Ministries in churches, but also extensively in secular markets, since August 2005.
